

Call for Nominations for the EuPA Senior Scientist 2010 Award in Proteomic Sciences

The European Proteomics Association invites nominations for the EuPA Senior Scientist 2010 Award in Proteomics. This annual Award is intended to acknowledge achievements in the field of proteomics in Europe. The Award will consist of a diploma and an honorarium of &euro;5000. The winner will be announced at the EuPA meeting, where he/she will give a lecture. The registration fee will be waived. A biographical sketch of the winner will be published in the Journal of Proteomics and in other Proteomics Journals and will be posted on the EuPA website. Deadline for nominations is May 15, 2010. Download submission form

The EuPA Award Panel will be composed of the EuPA executive committee.

Eligibility. Candidates must be a member of a national European proteomics society and nominated by any European proteomics society.

Submission. Nominations for the EuPA Senior Scientist Award in Proteomics should be sent to Dr Garry Corthals by March 31, 2010.